RESUME WEBSITE

At the end of the first semester of my advanced multimedia design class for my journalism major, we were required to adapt code given to us into our own professional websites, including designing color schemes and layouts. Below is an example of the website that I adapted into my own.

GET TO KNOW ME

I am currently a student at the University of Oklahoma pursuing a double degree in psychology and journalism. I grew up in the city of Singapore, and ventured halfway across the globe for college. At OU, I developed and honed a variety of skills from both fields, which gives me the versatility to master anything that is thrown my way. At OU, I participate in Dr Jennifer Barnes' lab. It explores the psychology of media perception.

In my spare time, I like playing the piano and reading. I also like coding and designing websites as well as learning more about front end development and UI/UX. I am an avid traveller and have been to over twenty different countries. I also spent a semester abroad in South Korea. I love exploring different cultures and stepping out of my comfort zone.

WIREFRAME INTO WEBSITE

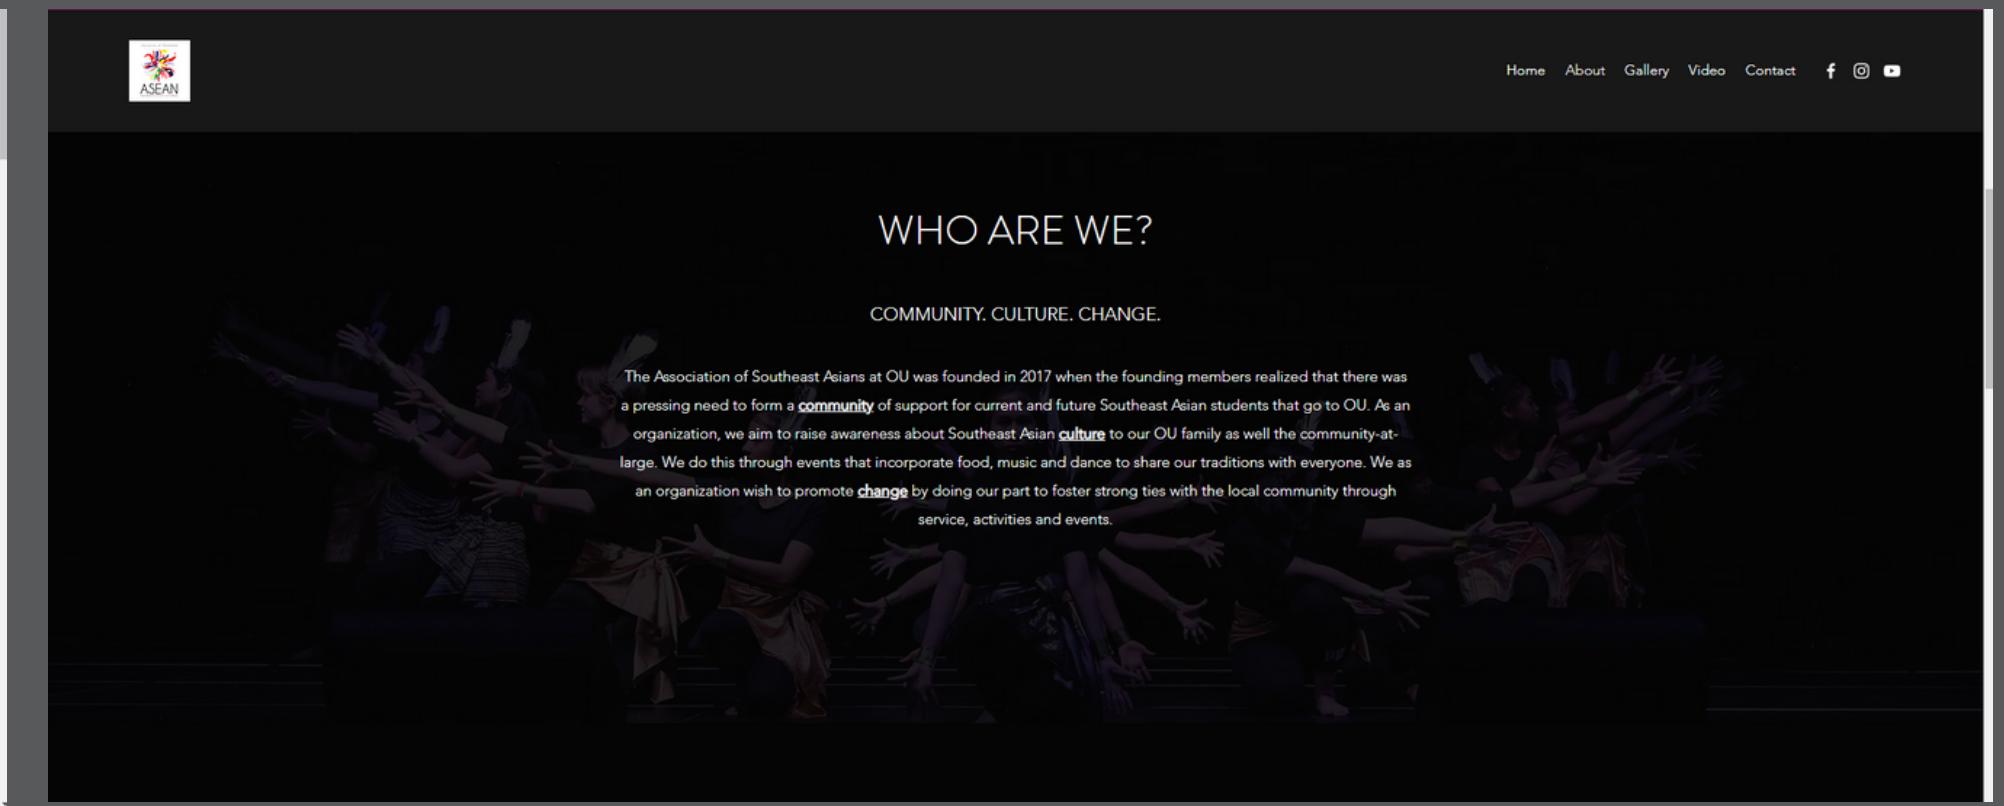

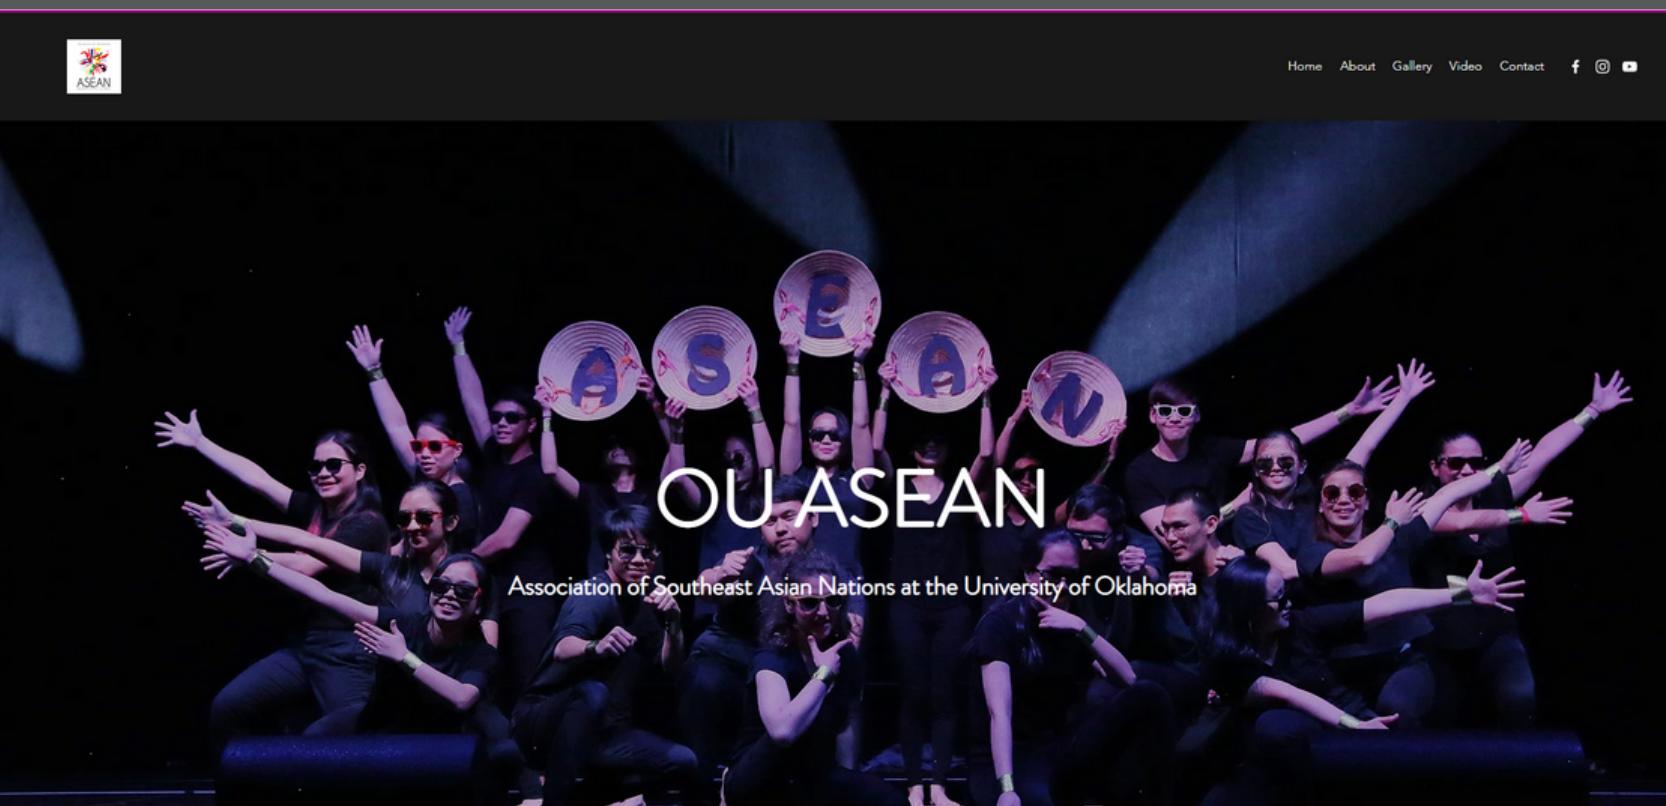

Wireframes are an important blueprint in creating websites. Below is a demonstration of my ability to transform high-fidelity wireframes into an actual website with content. I have coded from scratch several websites this way, as assigned, after one and a half semesters of HTML/CSS/JavaScript and front-end development experience.

GRAPHIC DESIGN WORK

Having served as the publicity chair for my student organization, OU Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), I took on the responsibility of designing posters, brochures, flyers and a website for the organization in addition to handling social media.

These are some examples of the my graphic/web design work outside of class.
